REGULATIONS AS TO MILEAGE

President Finley Explains Their Use.

In Interesting Article He Sets Forth Reasons For Requiring That Mileage Be Exchanged For Tickets—Mileage Users Get Reduced Rate and Are Not Put to More Inconvenience Than Person Who Pays Higher Cash Fare, Says Mr. Finley.

President W. W. Finley, of the Southern Railway, has written the following letter, in which he sets forth the reasons for requiring exchange of mileage for tickets:

To The Editor:

Recognizing frankly the obligations of a railway to the public which it serves, I have, since I have been charged with the management of the Southern Railway, availed myself of every proper opportunity to present to the public matters affecting the relations between the railways and their patrons. At the same time I have availed myself of the courteous co-operation of the press of the South to discuss matters in which the Southern people and the railways are vitally interested, and in connection with which I am endeavoring to make the Southern Railway a factor in increasing helpfulness in the field of Southern development.

My experience with this policy has convinced me that it is the proper one. I have confidence in the fairness and justice of the Southern people. I am of the South and for it. It is with confidence in being given a fair hearing, therefore, that I seek to present to the public opinion of the South a matter vitally affecting the railway companies, not in any spirit of controversy, but as a plain, straightforward statement of a business proposition. I feel sure that this course will commend itself to the public. This proposition is the regulation requiring the exchange of interchangeable mileage book coupons for tickets.

The railway companies operating in the Southeastern States have on sale interchangeable mileage book coupons which are sold at a substantial reduction from the single-trip ticket rates. These mileage coupon books are not passenger tickets, but the coupons they contain are exchangeable for tickets at the ticket offices of any of the railways that are parties to the agreement under which they are sold. The purchaser of one of these books has the advantage of buying coupons at a wholesale rate which are exchangeable for transportation.

As each railway which is a party to the interchangeable mileage book arrangement sells books of coupons of which are exchangeable for tickets not only on that road, but on each of the other participating roads, and as neither the selling road nor any other road which is under obligations to receive the coupons has any means of knowing how many of the coupons may be used on any particular road, an infallible system of interline accounting is absolutely necessary in order that each company shall be assured of its proper proportion of the revenue derived from the sale of each mileage coupon book. This, I think, is a self-evident business proposition which will commend itself to every business man.

The best evidence that a railway can have that it has honored mileage coupons sold by another railway is the possession of the coupons themselves. It follows that the basis of any reliable system of interline accounting must be a plan which will insure the preservation of every such coupon which each road receives. This is accomplished by a rule requiring the owner of a mileage coupon book to exchange coupons for his ticket in the same way that a traveler who does not own such a book exchanges his money for a ticket. Mileage coupons are the equivalent of money to the road which receives them, and, under this system, they are surrounded by the same safeguards as is the money which the agent receives for tickets. It is universally conceded to be a reasonable rule of accounting that a railroad should, in its dealings with passengers who purchase transportation with money, require that its agent at a station should receive and account for the money and issue a ticket therefor, and that another and independent agent on the train, namely, the conductor or ticket collector, should receive and account for the ticket, thus, in an easy way, one agent being a check on the other. If this is reasonable as to a money transaction, it seems to follow that it is also reasonable as to a transaction in which one company is required to receive coupons issued by another company, for such coupons are, as above stated, equivalent to money.

Under this system the ticket agent handles the money or its equivalent in mileage coupons, sells the ticket, and thus makes a record of what the company has sold. Another man collects the ticket and thus makes a record that the ticket has been used and must account for it. The agent must account for the selling price in money or mileage coupons, as the case may be, and the coupons from books sold by other roads constitute a claim on the respective roads by which they have been sold. Every business man knows that such records and checks are essential to any proper system of accounting and that every claim for money from another business establishment must be supported by evidence of the claim. The railways have been unable to devise any other system that will so certainly prevent complications in interline accounting and so effectively safeguard the revenues of each company.

No one claims that it is unreasonable for a carrier to require a traveler without a mileage book to buy a ticket instead of paying the money on the train. Is it unreasonable, therefore, that the man who uses a mileage coupon book and gets his passage at a lower rate should also be required to buy his ticket, the only difference being that he pays in coupons while the other pays in money?

That this is a reasonable view of the matter is also shown by the fact that the regulations in effect in Southeastern territory have been sustained by the Supreme Court of South Carolina and the Railroad Commissions of Alabama, Georgia, and South Carolina.

In the Central West, including the States of Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, and Kentucky, there has been in effect for a number of years a system under which the purchaser pays $25.00 for a 1000-mile coupon book. He must exchange the coupons for tickets just the same as in Southeastern territory, with the additional requirement that he shall sign the ticket when it is taken up on the train. On the return to the railway company of the cover of the book, showing the entire use of the coupons, five dollars is returned to him, and not until then does the purchaser receive the benefit of the reduced rate. These regulations were called into question in a case before the United States Interstate Commerce Commission, in which that commission said:

"In a word, the right to use exchange orders and mileage books is in the nature of a privilege voluntarily accorded by carriers under their tariffs and must be accepted by those who use such special fares with all lawful and non-discriminatory limitations that may be attached to them."

It is sometimes alleged that, on account of inadequate force at the ticket window, passengers with interchangeable mileage coupon books are required to wait in line so long that they are unable to have their coupons exchanged before train time or do not have sufficient time to check their baggage. So far as the railway company is responsible for such conditions they can be corrected, and it is the duty of the carrier to correct them.

The fact that a system different from that prevailing in the Southeast and the Central West has grown up on some of the railroads of the country in other sections, should not, it seems to me, condemn a regulation which is business-like and reasonable in itself, and subjects the users of mileage books to no greater inconvenience than the users of money in the purchase of tickets. In all frankness, I must say that I do not believe that any road permitting the use of interchangeable mileage on its trains could undertake to defend that system as business-like or in any way protecting its accounting.

I am sure that the people of the South appreciate that the first public interest in transportation is in adequacy of facilities and efficiency of service, and that it is recognized that ability to provide these is dependent, among other things, upon the carriers being cordially supported in the application of rules which are requisite for the protection of the revenues which they receive for transportation.

I hope it will be clearly understood that I am not writing in any controversial spirit, but, believing in the policy of frankly dealing with the public, I am endeavoring to explain a business proposition which is now under more or

KNIGHTS OF GRIP AT BANQUET BOARD

Wyson & Miles Company Hosts At Banquet To Their Traveling Representatives Last Evening At McAdoo Hotel—Number of Interesting Speeches by the Men.

Last evening at the McAdoo Hotel the directors, officers and salesmen of the Wyson & Miles Company held their annual banquet, the salesmen being the special guests of the company. A sumptuous repast was served, the courses being interspersed with talks by a number of the traveling men. Good cheer and good fellowship prevailed, the officials of the company expressing their appreciation of the faithful work of the "knights of the grip" and the salesmen expressing their appreciation of the efforts made by the company to make their work as easy as possible.

Mr. O. C. Wyson acted as toastmaster and Rev. C. E. Hodgkin made the invocation. Mr. Wyson stated that the banquet was given as a token of the appreciation of the company for the work of the men. He said that the road of a traveling man was not an easy one by any means and every salesman carried with him the sympathy of the officials of the company. He said the company was ever striving to make their work as easy as possible in order that the best results might obtain.

Mr. G. H. Miles spoke of the good feeling which existed between the salesmen and the company and assured the men that every effort would be made to assist them while they were away from home. He spoke of the great advertisement the men were for Greensboro. Mr. G. H. Walker, one of the salesmen, was called upon and he responded in a happy vein, telling the men how to deal with prospective customers. Good humor seemed to be ever uppermost in his nature and he kept the "boys" laughing from start to finish. A salesman is between two fires, he said, he must look after the interests of his customer just as much as he must look after the interests of the company he represents if he would be successful.

Short, snappy talks were made by Messrs. R. M. Clapp, W. L. Clark, C. C. Davis, L. L. Zink, L. R. Jennings, J. A. Kleemeier, J. O. Newman, J. M. Malloy, P. M. Elder and others, each speaker giving some experience for the profit of others.

The Wyson & Miles Company have just closed the largest year's business in their history, their men covering all parts of the Union and the larger portion of Canada. The salesmen have been here spending the holidays with their families and looking over the new inventions and improvements made by the company. They will leave this week for their respective territories, with bright prospects of doing a larger business than was done last year.

Important Meeting.

The regular monthly business meeting of Asheboro Street Baptist church will be held Thursday evening instead of Wednesday. This on account of the absence of the pastor, who was called to Wilkesboro to preach the funeral of a deacon of the church of which he was formerly pastor. Mr. Staley will return in time to be present at the meeting tomorrow evening. All members are urged to be present, as the meeting is to be an important one.

Mrs. Roberson Entertains.

Mrs. Chas. Roberson entertained a few friends at bridge yesterday afternoon at her home on Church street, in honor of Miss Ernestine Elder, of Clarksville, Tenn., who is visiting Mrs. W. B. Vaught on Summit avenue. Those present were: Misses Ernestine Elder, Eloise Dick, Marie Reynolds, Alice Calhoun, Kate Hardie, Annie Merritt, Mrs. Max T. Payne and Mrs. Edwin Nowell.

To get in the push generally requires a certain amount of pull.

less public discussion.

I trust that the public will appreciate that the regulation referred to has not been adopted in any spirit of subjecting passengers to inconvenience or to a vexatious or troublesome regulation, but only for the purpose of securing a reasonable method of accounting and of establishing those checks which are found necessary in every well organized business, and that upon this statement and a just consideration of the whole subject, this regulation will have the support of those who use the mileage coupon books, some of whom may not heretofore have had a clear understanding of the business necessity for the regulation in question.

CHANGES IN THE EDUCATION LAWS

Recommendations by Supt. J. Y. Joyner.

Wants No Radical Changes Made, But Asks For Appropriation of $50,000 For Country Farm Life Schools—Also Increase in Appropriation For Rural High Schools—Recommends That Minority Party Be Given Representation on School Boards.

Raleigh, Jan. 3.—The recommendations by State Superintendent of Public Instruction J. Y. Joyner to the General Assembly as to the legislative needs of public education in North Carolina were made public today. He asks that no radical changes be made in the present laws. He wants not less than $50,000 appropriated for country farm-life high schools. Also he wants an increase of $25,000 in the appropriation for rural high schools. Furthermore, he wants the State University, the A. & M. College at Raleigh and the State Normal College in Greensboro to be required to hold summer schools each year in which there shall be special training of public school teachers and those intending to teach, no charge in the way of tuition to be made. He wants the minimum pay for second grade teachers to be fixed at $30 instead of $25.

Mr. Joyner declares that he regards it just and wise that wherever competent men can be found in the minority party that they be given place on the county boards of education. He says the method of selection should be made uniform and calls attention to the fact that six counties now elect their own school boards, whereas, all the others are named by legislative enactment. The inference is that he favors the legislative method.

Mr. Joyner wants the state tax for public schools increased from 18 cents on the $100 to 25 cents to lengthen the school terms and improve facilities. He wants the conditions governing the distribution of the second one hundred thousand dollars for assuring four months school changed so that counties must levy a 10 instead of 5 per cent tax.

ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED.

Miss Mary Patterson and Mr. Arthur Neal Goodwin to Wed in February.

Yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. A. B. High on Wainman street Mrs. C. T. Lipscomb and Mrs. High entertained in honor of their sister, Miss Mary Patterson, and announced her engagement to Mr. Arthur Neal Goodwin, of Lake Butler, Fla., the wedding to take place in February.

After the guests had all arrived they were invited into the dining room which was beautifully decorated for the occasion. At each plate was a beautiful hand-painted place card, each one bearing a toast. Suspended from the chandelier was a white parasol. From each corner hung little baskets filled with air plants. Beneath the parasol hung a beautiful basket filled with pink carnations and pink ribbon, the latter extending to each plate. The guests were asked to pull and at the end of each ribbon were beautiful double hearts on the outside one were hand-painted orange blossoms and in the inside in gilt letters were the names—Mary Patterson and Arthur Neal Goodwin, Lake Butler, Fla., Feb. 1910. After a delicious salad course grape juice and fruit cake, bonbons and salted almonds were served and each guest gave a toast to the bride to be, being very happily responded to.

Damage By Fire.

It was ascertained that the damage by Monday night's fire would not be so great as was at first feared, though nothing like correct estimates are yet obtainable. A portion of Isaacson's stock was not damaged, but his loss will be $10,000 or $15,000. Mr. West's damage is now estimated at $1,500, Stout Bros. $1,000, Oppelman $1,500, damage to building, $6,000.

Invitations Recalled.

Mrs. J. M. Cunningham wishes to recall the invitations to the tea appointment for this afternoon from 4 to 5 o'clock for Miss Alice Callum. This on account of the death of Major Joseph M. Morehead, who was an uncle of Mr. Cunningham.

THE REAL ESTATE MARKET ACTIVE

WORKED SLICK GAME.

Negro "Works" Conyers & Sykes For Four Dollars and Bottle of Medicine.

A negro, name and description unknown, worked a slick game on Conyers & Sykes, druggists, early last night, securing a bottle of patent medicine and four dollars in hard cash. It is doubted if he drank the medicine, but he closed his greedy fingers on the money without displaying any sign of a guilty conscience. The officers are on the lookout, but having no description are somewhat at sea.

The negro phoned the druggists, asking that a bottle of Swamproot, costing $1, be sent to a certain address, mentioning 443 East Washington street. He asked that four dollars in change be sent as he had a five dollar bill. The medicine was sent out, as was the change. The boy was looking for the number when he was spied by a negro on the opposite side of the street, who asked him who he was looking for. On being told he replied that he was the person who sent after the medicine. Instead of turning over the $5 bill he tendered a check for $15, explaining to the boy that he was indebted to the firm to the amount of $10 and this would square the account. He then without parley pocketed the change and made around a convenient house, the boy returning to the store thinking the transaction was all right.

The check was worthless, of course. It was made payable to and endorsed by Will Allen. The signature was that of W. E. Hollen, or Holler, the latter part of the name being illegible. The officers after being notified tracked the negro around the house, but could follow him no farther. Yesterday afternoon someone, presumably the same person, made an effort to work the same trick on Fariss-Klutz Drug Co., but failed.

IN MUNICIPAL COURT.

Several Cases of Minor Importance Disposed of Yesterday Morning.

There were several cases in Municipal court yesterday morning, none of them being of more than passing importance, however. Charlie Walker, a negro boy, was charged with larceny. He was convicted, Judge Eure suspending judgment on payment of the costs and during his good behavior.

Ed Coltrain, colored, was given a hearing on the charge of retailing cocaine. Judge Eure bound him over to the February term of Guilford Criminal court in a bond of $100. Failing to give bond he was committed to jail.

John H. Jeffreys and Ordas Coggins, two small boys who engaged in an affray on South Elm street Monday night, were given a hearing. Jeffreys was found not guilty, while Coggins was taxed with the costs in the case. It seems that as the boys saw the firemen fighting the flames there was an irresistible desire to fight in their youthful breasts. Accordingly they went at each other and Policeman Iseley gobbled both of them up. Judge Eure took occasion to deliver a lecture yesterday morning while the boys were in court.

Week of Prayer.

This week is being observed by the women of the First Baptist church as the week of prayer for China. Today there will be an offering and collection of envelopes. Those who attend are being very much pleased. A large attendance is desired today.

W. C. DOWD IS TO BE SPEAKER

Unanimously Chosen by Democrats.

Mr. Koonce Withdrew From Race Before Caucus Was Held Last Night—Republican Members Nominate Speaker and President Pro Tem of Senate—Biennial Session of Legislature Will Convene Today.

Raleigh, Jan. 3.—W. C. Dowd, of Mecklenburg, was chosen tonight by acclamation in the caucus of Democratic members of House as the Democratic nominee for speaker which means that he will receive the unanimous vote of the 103 Democratic members of the House tomorrow.

There had been a strenuous contest between Dowd and Koonce during the day in campaigning among members, but it became known early in the evening before the caucus assembled that Koonce had withdrawn and Dowd would have no opposition. Following his nomination in a brief address Mr. Dowd appealed for co-operation in making this session historic in its fostering care of the educational, industrial and agricultural interests of the State.

G. T. Cobb was re-elected principal clerk of the House.

The Republican members of the Senate and House held a joint caucus in the chamber of commerce rooms tonight. Ex-Judge H. R. Starbuck, of Forsyth, was named as the candidate for president pro tem of the Senate and ex-Judge H. G. Ewart, of Henderson, received the complimentary nomination of speaker of the House.

The Legislature will convene in biennial session tomorrow, but it is not expected that any work will be taken up after the two bodies have organized for the session. Practically all the members are here and the capital building has put on a businesslike air.

MR. STERNE NEW HEAD OF LAUNDRY MACHINERY CO.

Well Known Business Man Elected President—Will Throw Himself Into the Work With Vigor.

At a recent meeting of the directors of the Dixie Laundry Machinery Manufacturing Company Mr. M. W. Sterne was elected president and will take over the active management of the corporation.

Mr. Sterne, who is known as a man of sound judgment and business acumen, announces his intention to work vigorously for the success of the company. He has had stock in it and has believed in it all the while but not until recently was he made an officer of the company.

Mr. Sterne believes that this company has exceptional prospects. He thinks that with prudent management it will assume a place in laundry machinery manufacturing circles somewhat like the exalted place held in the furniture machinery manufacturing world by the Wyson & Miles Company, which ships its products all over the world.

Starting with the manufacture of a patented washer, the company is now prepared to equip, with machinery of its own manufacture and that which it can supply, a laundry from top to bottom.

The patented washer has been sold to the number of 200 and is giving perfect satisfaction everywhere it is being used. Other appliances have been patented, are taking well and finding a brisk demand.

The factory is the only one of the kind in the South and progressive Southern cities are trying to secure it, Savannah and Winston-Salem being among those which have overtures of this nature. Mr. Sterne, however, believes that Greensboro is the place for the factory and promises to see that it is kept here. He believes that Greensboro's greatest need is for more factories and that when one with a promising future like the laundry machinery company is already here and already well under way, the thing to do is to cling to it and develop it to the utmost.

The plant is located on East Washington street in the old Southern Robbin Works building. Mr. B. F. Kaufman being superintendent.

THE SHEEHAN BOOM.

It Is of Candidate's Own Building—Its Genesis Far Back.

New York Times.

As the time draws nearer for the Democratic caucus over the New York Senatorship, it becomes increasingly evident that William F. Sheehan has the lead over all the other candidates. Nor is this, as is generally assumed, due solely to Charles F. Murphy's preference for him. Sheehan has, in addition to his Tammany strength, a good deal of the up-State support which goes to him without regard to Murphy's attitude. A curious feature of the situation is that Erie county, which 17 years ago hooted Sheehan out of politics, is now almost solidly for him. Even the Republicans in that county are favorable to the man whom in the old days they were denouncing as the extreme limit in the way of a conscienceless and dangerous politician.

The Sheehan boom is no post-election afterthought on the part of Tammany Hall. It is Sheehan's own product, and its genesis lies far back. As soon as it became evident that 1910 was likely to be a Democratic year, Sheehan looked over the plums and decided that the Senatorship was the one which most appealed to his palate. He began his approaches to the plum tree at a time when less skillful politicians were still debating whether the State was likely to go Democratic or not. Sheehan knew it would.

Others scattered their fire. Sheehan aimed for one target and wasted no ammunition. He picked out districts where trouble might be made for him and "staked" the Democratic candidates for the Legislature. This "staking" was legitimate, as far as such things can be. That is to say, Sheehan bribed nobody. But he did contribute to the campaign fund of Democrats likely to be elected and who were not certain to be for Sheehan. Any politician will tell you that such a contribution is perfectly legitimate.

GIRL BOSSES BOYS AT RESCUE OF SKATER

Directed by Her, Human Chain is Formed and Youth Dragged Out of Canal.

New York World.
Just as he had lost consciousness from cold and exhaustion Walter Post of Richfield, N. J., was dragged from the waters of Garabrant's Basin on the Morris Canal yesterday by a human chain made up of three girls and three boys under the direction of Aline Fitzgibbons.

Post, seventeen years old, was cutting figure eights on the ice of the canal when a wide turn took him backward over an airhole. He sank in seven feet of water, and as he came to the surface and tried to make his way out the thin ice broke under him. He went down the second time and the stretch of open water around him had so increased it was difficult for any of the other skaters to get near the boy.

Then Miss Fitzgibbons took command. At her orders Robert Foster, Irving Demarest, Thomas Warren, Louise White and Blanche Upton joined hands with her and formed a line which stretched from the canal bank to the edge of the hole where Post had disappeared. Foster was at the outer end of the line, and when Post came to the surface he had just strength enough left to reach out his hand.

Foster seized the boy's wrist firmly, and at his word Miss Upton, who was on the bank, started slowly backward. Post was dragged through the ice for some distance before a place firm enough to bear his weight and that of his rescuers was reached, but finally, just as he lost consciousness, Foster was able to pull him from the water.

Post was rolled on a barrel until the water was forced from his lungs, and when he had been wrapped in blankets an automobile happened along. In this he was taken to his home, where Dr. H. B. Thompson found that a few hours in bed would bring him around all right.

SENDS OUT NEW THOUGHT.

Evil To Be Cast Out of the Flesh by Collecting Man's Atoms in Harmony.

New York Tribune.
Nearly a hundred of New York's millions of inhabitants were enough concerned about their wealth, happiness and abundance yesterday afternoon to attend the talk of Mrs. Mary E. Chapin, of Boston, on what the New Thoughters thing about "constructive" living. The number of those in the Berkeley Theatre, however, did not affect Mrs. Chapin in the least. All the crowned heads of Europe were hearing her words, even as she spoke, she said. Like ripples that a stone thrown into the water make, the vibrations of her thought were traveling around the world.

When the near-hundred had assembled, full half an hour after the appointed time, Mrs. Chapin glided to the stage and brought a hush upon the audience with a smile.

"While my friend is playing the piano," she began, "let us put every thought of sordid, everyday life out of our mind (and open its doors and windows to beauty and health and power and strength and opulence."

She showed how this was done by reclining languidly in a chair, eyes closed. The audience promptly followed her example, and some of them omitted to change their attitude throughout the remainder of the afternoon.

"The story of Lot's wife," announced Mrs. Chapin, when the music ceased, "has come to be a living truth. In beginning this New Year let us not look back, let us keep our faces set toward the future. If we keep our thoughts on past years we shall become like a pillar of salt. Regret, remorse, are at the bottom of many manifestations of disease in the body. Cut off everything of evil, unhappiness, failure, that belongs to the past and bring into the new life only what has been beautiful and harmonizing, true and good."

From this exhortation Mrs. Chapin went forward to explain how the happy result might be brought about. Science, she said, taught that there were new atoms coming into a man all the time. Each new atom, she declared, was stamped with a thought as it came. If the thought was wrong, then the man would be ugly or unhappy or diseased. "As a man thinketh," she quoted, "so is he." Spirit, she continued, was mighty in the pulling down of strongholds. To come into oneness with the spirit, to affirm that one's own self was master and that everything in one was subject to one's will; to get out of a little peck measure into the measure of the universe—that, said she, was the religion of the future, as Charles Eliot had so beautifully called it.

NIP IT IN THE BUD.

First Appearance of Dandruff a Forerunner of Future Baldness.

That such is the case has been conclusively proven by scientific research. Prof. Unna, the noted European skin specialist, declares that dandruff is the burrowing-out of the scalp, caused by parasites destroying the vitality in the hair bulb. The hair becomes lifeless, and, in time, falls out. This can be prevented.

Newbro's Herpicide kills this dandruff germ, and restores the hair to its natural softness and abundance.

Herpicide is now used by thousands of people—all satisfied that it is the most wonderful hair preparation on the market to-day.

Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c. in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

My Sympathetic Friend

By SUSAN YOUNG PALMER

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

My father and mother both died when I was so young that I have no remembrance of them, and I was sent to an orphan asylum. When I was eighteen the matron one morning called me into her room and said to me:

"You have been very useful to us here since you passed out of childhood, but I am expected by the managers to get on without help. You are now old enough to be self supporting and must either work for yourself alone or in a home. I occasionally receive a letter from some man desiring one of our grown girls for a wife. I had one of these letters this morning from a young man in the west, who says that he has a good farm on which he lives alone, and he wishes me to send him some one for a helpmeet whom I can recommend, and he has forwarded letters recommending him. Let me know if you wish the position."

The matron was used to condensing everything she said just as she had spoken these words. She was a good woman, but was so intimately connected with the world's troubles that she could not give much attention to those of any one person. She turned to other duties, and I left her to go to my room to think.

The result of my tearful deliberations was that I was a few days later handed a ticket and what money I would need on the journey and took a train for the west. My leaving was telegraphed to my future husband, who was to meet me at the station, marry me and drive me twenty miles to his farm. I had no money with which to return or go anywhere else in case he should prove disagreeable. Indeed, I felt as though I had been pitched over a precipice.

The train had left Chicago and we were bowling along toward the Mississippi. I noticed a young man sitting near me who was looking at me. I thought, sympathetically. I must have shown my despondency in my face, for his own reflected it or, rather, bespoke commiseration. Presently he came over to me and said, with an encouraging smile:

"You look troubled. Is there anything I can do or say to make you feel happier?"

There was that in his honest face and eyes that invited confidence. I told him my story. He listened to it attentively and respectfully and when I had finished said:

"Has it occurred to you that the man who is to marry you is in the same position with regard to you that you are with regard to him?"

"I never thought of that."

"And do you know that many so called love matches turn out very unhappily?"

"I supposed," I replied, "that it was the forced marriages such as the one I am about to make that are failures."

"There is no truer saying than that marriage is a lottery. I think you have a better chance in yours than those people who, blinded by love, see no fault until a number of them are plainly visible after marriage. Unbiased persons have recommended this man to you and you to him. You both trust to them instead of your own judgment biased by love. The chances are largely in your favor."

"What you say," I replied, "sounds encouraging, but it seems to me that I would rather begin with love even if I must end with disappointment."

"Spoken like a woman," he rejoined. "And I would rather begin without love and end with love."

What a treasure are these people who have the faculty of lifting the cloud that hangs over us and showing us the sun shining behind. This young man seemed to have only an ordinary education, but any deficiency was made up by common sense. Then, too, it was easy to see that he had a kind heart. He was constantly looking at me out of those sympathetic eyes of his, which said, "Poor child, how I pity you!" He was with me most of the morning and all the afternoon. He soon ceased to talk about my trouble, leading me into other paths, though he told me many instances of persons who had made marriage a matter of business and found it a matter of affliction.

My lover—I was certainly thinking the word, mockery that it was—had written that my train would land me in the night at the last principal town on my route, and I was to remain there, taking another train the next morning. When I parted with my newly made friend I relapsed into the same miserable condition as before. But I was tired, and that night, though I went to sleep in tears, I got a fairly good rest. This and a bright morning kept me up the next day till I approached the last station, where I was to meet "my lover," when it was all I could do to resist a temptation to throw myself from the train. I permitted every one to go out before me and wished there were more of them. Then when alone I nerved myself for the ordeal and left the car.

My lover was there waiting for me, extending his hand to assist me down the steps.

A sudden wonder mixed with a wild fluttering of my heart caused me to pause. Was I in a dream or was I waking from sleep? The man waiting to hand me down was my sympathetic friend.

The Washington correspondent of the Raleigh News and Observer learns that the President will recognize both of the Republican factions in North Carolina. That is the natural and logical thing for him to do and the President can be depended on to do the natural and reasonable thing provided it doesn't take considerable courage to do it.

As Wilmington has ordered compulsory vaccination, it is plain that in the city by the sea the medical profession takes no stock in the propaganda against vaccination that is being carried on in some cities. Despite the fact that vaccination has long been hailed as a relief from the smallpox scourge, there are those here and there who claim that it is unnecessary. But of course the great weight of the authority is on the other side.

Andrew Carnegie, John D. Rockefeller or one of the other individuals who have more money than they know what to do with ought to establish a foundation for the protection of the public from unloaded guns. Recently near Benson, this State, a boy killed his brother with a gun that wasn't loaded, that is to say, with a gun that wasn't supposed to be loaded. The unloaded gun is one of the greatest menaces of the times. Folks aren't half sufficiently advised as to its dangers.

Has Col. Roosevelt petered out completely? Or is his star just temporarily in eclipse? Certain it is, that very little is heard of the ex-President nowadays. People don't kow-tow to him as they did. They have ceased regarding him as a superman. This is well. United States folks are a mighty people. To their happiness no single individual is a prime necessity. The blind worship of Roosevelt which prevailed for a time was unnecessary and inexcusable. Of course other heroes in time to come will be placed on a pedestal and worshiped. But not Mr. Roosevelt again. He will have to "show" the people before they run wild over him again. The Philadelphia Record says:

The most remarkable political overturn in the late history of American politics is that which marked the surging advance and the sudden subsidence of Rooseveltism within the last months of 1910. It looked for awhile as if Africa might swallow America when the Colonel came back fresh from his lioning. There were no adverbs to modify the explosive adjectives with which the Rough Rider and his worshipers beat the tom-tom of summer welcome. Naught was good without Oyster Bay indorsement. Progress and Pinchot were on top. Taft for 1912 was vetoed at Albany. It was an altogether corking and vociferous time.

But, alas and alas! there followed a killing November frost. America opened wide its jaws, pondered a moment, then Africa disappeared. The muck-raking magazines turned suddenly silent and sour toward an erstwhile idol. The blatant bullying newspapers began to see a new light. At last Teddy himself squirmed—squatted—and finally beamed in greeting upon the advance of the Taft second-term procession. It was a great show while it lasted.

A correspondent of the Asheville Citizen writes that paper suggesting some needed legislation. His letter follows:

"As the Legislature will soon meet I suggest that they call the Sitosons of Buncom county to meet at the Coit house to kill the home stid law and make it a Road crim not less than 12 months to buy a bushel of corn or a yerd of Calico an promis to pay for it tomorrow an never come back to pay it. I want you to see the Legislators and tell them they Must do something for the onest Sitosons or they ar ruined world without end. I Want you to put a piece in your paper ever day and work it up. ever onest Sitosons of Buncom is in favor of it. If they isn't something don, the onest people can not make the Raskells worke it out on the roads and let the contey have the detes. Let me hear from you ever day in your paper. Less make it hot for the Raskells. P. s. Let the county have them an pay the farmer an the merchat that they Beat ever onest man is in favor of this."

It really does look as if there ought to be some punishment for the people who make debts without intending to pay them. And just about as much of a sinner against good morals and common decency is the man who makes debts, intending to pay them, but doesn't make any sort of effort to carry out his intentions. Both classes are little better than highwaymen. They "hold up" the unwary citizen. Every creditor has had experience with people of this sort. Every creditor has seen people indebted to him, and failing to pay, enjoying pleasures and luxuries that the creditor himself cannot enjoy. And the sight, we are prepared to say from experience, is a somewhat grilling one. But new laws are not needed unless it is the repeal or modification of the homestead law. What is most needed is for creditors to be stricter in their business methods, to "get a line" on these modern bandits and highwaymen of whom we have been speaking and be prepared to protect themselves from their depredations.

MAJOR MOREHEAD'S FAITH.

Poem Written Upon Death of His Cousin Expressive of His Belief in Omniscent Divinity.

The poem which follows was written by Maj. Joseph M. Morehead, who passed away Sunday morning, upon the death of his cousin, Eugene Morehead, about twenty years ago. It was read at the funeral of Major Morehead, by Rev. Mr. Clark, and is expressive of the tender sympathy and unwavering faith of the man in an omniscent Divinity:

If I could stand, as oft I've stood by you,
And look again in your beloved face,
And all its old-time lineaments trace,
For joy I'd hush by breathings with the view.

If I could hear you calling out my name,
And catch your eye with pleasure all aflame,
And honest, old-time welcome as I came,
Life's charms beyond were pitifully tame.

And is it, thus for me to fondly dream
And wish you back in this sad world again,

Where you were all "so tired" in your pain,
A weak and heartless selfishness extreme?

If there's no life beyond this vale of tears,
Why clings man so to Heaven's blissful shore
By faith and prayer? Alas! and lest no more
I love, and live with you, midst bitter fears.

No man had bore a purer heart than thine,
But virtue here is in her infancy,
And when thy man's full stature there I see
Shall I thy old self know? Oh watch for mine!

For, since the ruined Dives found new woe
In tender thoughts of loved ones left behind
It cannot be, thy nature all refined,
Will quite unloose some ties formed here. I know.

O! that, like you, I now could realize,
As tested truth, the precious Word of God,
As then I shall, when from beneath the sod
Like you, I wake to Heaven's rich surprise.

My grief, my fears God's mercies still unfold;
—They only trust whom tears and darkness teach;
And, too, but for the new-born grief of each
Succeeding day how could we bear the old?

Transcendent boon! that makes again my own
The days that I've out-lived, the self out-grown;
With all their truth and trust and gladness flown;
That heals all wounds and shall all faults condone,
—All this Faith does, and more, and Faith alone.

A Legend

By F. TOWNSEND SMITH

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

When I was abroad last summer I visited a German American friend of mine who had got rich in America making beer and with the proceeds bought one of those ruined castles on the Rhine, repaired it and spent his summers there. We were sitting one afternoon in a room facing the west. The weather being warm, the blinds were closed to keep out the sun. Seeing what I supposed to be a silver coin on the floor, I arose, went to it and was about to pick it up when I saw that it was one of those little round sun images that will come through a chink. Shuster, my host, laughed at me and said:

"That reminds me of a legend about this castle. It was formerly owned by Baron Hugner. The story goes that the baron was a great gambler. When he succeeded to the castle, a lot of money went with it. You see, it lies on one of two hills, and a road has always led between them down to the river. This road was frequented by merchants who took goods down to the Rhine for shipment by water. When the baron saw a party of them in the distance he had only to swoop down on them, levy a tribute of some 25 to 50 per cent of the value of their goods for toll, and there you are.

"This baron I was telling you about—Hubert Hugner was his name—inherited the property just about the time that people got virtuous, and it wasn't considered any more the way for a nobleman to rob. He did it after this by serving the sovereign, and when his king pounced upon a state or a duchy or something like that the baron got a slice.

"Well, as I was saying, Baron Hugner was rich, a gambler and withal virtuous. He gambled all day, and he gambled all night. Now, the legend has it that the devil had for centuries been interested in the wealth the baron had extorted from the merchants and wanted his share. But he didn't want it in money. He has no use for material, only spiritual things. What he wanted for his share of the plunder was a soul, and the soul he had set his villainous heart on was Baron Hugner's.

"The way the devil managed to get a hold on the baron was through his passion for play. Whenever Hugner gambled the devil stood behind him and so influenced him to make his bets that gradually every bit of the gold that the Hugners had for centuries taken from the merchants went by the board. Then one day when the baron had lost it all the devil came into the room disguised as a Jew and told him that he would discount his note for a large sum without either security or interest. When Hugner came to find out what the devil wanted in lieu of security and interest it was the usual thing Satan hungers for—his soul.

"The transaction was completed, the consideration—the soul—to be delivered six months after date without grace. The baron was furnished with a thousand pieces of gold, with which he went on gambling and gradually recovered all he had lost, getting his financial affairs into a satisfactory condition a few days before his note came due.

"The night before Hugner's soul was to be delivered the baron had a dream. He dreamed that an angel appeared to him and said: 'Tomorrow Satan will claim your soul in lieu of his interest in the plunder exacted in the past by your ancestors from merchants. It is not meet that he should reap this benefit. Tomorrow when he comes for you tell him that you can win money from him without even a piece of money so big as a head of a pin. He will demur to that. Then offer to bet him the soul of your oldest son that you can do what you have said.'

"When the baron awoke it seemed that he had really seen the angel and received the advice. Hugner was scarcely out of bed before a stranger called and asked to see him. The baron recognized at once the fiend who had called for his soul. With a faint hope he obeyed the instructions of his dream. The devil accepted the challenge, and they sat down before a board used on that day something like faro. The devil dealt and, seeing what he thought was a silver coin on the green, turned up a card that won. Without examining the coin he threw the baron one of equal value.

"I would respectfully call your attention," said the baron, "to the fact that what you thought was a coin is only a round sun spot coming in through a chink in the window blind."

"Upon my word," said the devil, "I believe you are right."

"I think we are quits," pursued the baron, "and my soul is my own."

"The devil answered never a word, but got up from the table, went out of the door and never returned. But that night he sent a fierce storm of lightning and hail that partly destroyed the castle, and it had never been occupied till I came here myself."

My host assured me that all of the people at the foot of the Schloss knew of this legend and that most of them believed it.

It is these legends that make the ruins of German castles more interesting than they would be were they mere piles of stone and mortar. I spent quite awhile with my friend the baron, and my fascination for his home steadily grew till my departure.

Where the swindler is concerned charity covers a multitude of sins.

WHY MOISANT FELL.

Curious Story of the Accident Comes From New Orleans.

New Orleans dispatch in Washington Herald.

A curious story has grown out of the aftermath of discussion relative to possible causes for Moisant's death. This story has it that an ingrowing toenail was responsible for the fatal accident. The offending nail had been causing him intense pain and he had an engagement with a chiropodist for Saturday afternoon, when an operation was to have been attempted.

The theory is set forth that sudden pain might have caused Moisant to erratically shift about in the machine, to whose balance he was not accustomed, thereby upsetting equilibrium and tossing the machine down a cascade of air before Moisant could recover.

Old Soldier Tortured.

"For years I suffered unspeakable torture from indigestion, constipation and liver trouble," wrote A. K. Smith, a war veteran at Erie, Pa., "but Dr. King's New Life Pills fixed me all right. They are simply great." Try them for any stomach, liver or kidney trouble. Only 25c. at Fariss-Klutznick Drug Co.

The Sculptor Philosopher.

The sculptor had just finished the Appollo Belvedere.

"I am satisfied," he cried. "Every man who passes thinks it looks like himself."—New York Sun.

The Red Shirt.

The origin of the "red shirt"—worn as a blouse by English women in the sixties, when Garibaldi was a popular idol throughout Great Britain—is sufficiently curious. When the celebrated filibuster was warring in the South American republics he was anxious to obtain a distinctive and, above all, economical uniform for his followers. He learned that a local dry goods store had an immense "job lot" of these garments, worn by the "saladeros," or cattle slaughterers, of the great South American cities. The "bargain sale" appealed eloquently to the leader's purse, and he led his men to victory in the butchers' shirts, which are now the accepted emblem of the "risorgimento" of United Italy.—London Globe.

A Little Temperance Tragedy.

"Don't drink any more, John. You've got too much already."

"No, I haven't."

"Yes, you have, and you'll be drunk again."

"Aw, what do you want to worry about that for? It's me that has the headache next morning."

"I know, John, but it's me that has the heartache all the time."—New York Times.

The Price of Love.

Says an advertisement in the London Express: "Mary—waited three hours at appointed spot until questioned by suspicious policeman. If this is the price of love it is too heavy a one for me to pay. Farewell, Potts."

Time and Patience.

No road is too long for him who advances slowly and does not hurry, and no attainment is beyond his reach who equips himself with patience to achieve it.—La Bruyere.

The Name Noah.

Not many persons are sufficiently acquainted with the Bible to know that Noah was the name of a woman as well as of the patriarch. At an inquest in England a female witness gave her Christian name as "Noah." The coroner remarked that he had never before known a woman to bear the name, whereupon the witness, who was well posted in the origin of her singular prenomens, said:

"It is a Bible name, sir; you'll find it in the last chapter of the book of Numbers."

Reference was duly made, and in the eleventh verse of the thirty-sixth chapter the coroner found mention made of "Mablah, Tirzah and Hoglah and Milcah and Noah, the daughters of Zelophead."

Betrothals in Germany.

In Germany an elaborate method of announcing the betrothal practically puts an end to all breach of promise cases. As soon as a couple become engaged the pair visit the town hall and declare their willingness to marry and sign, with witnesses, a series of documents which render a change of mind on the man's part practically out of the question. When either party wishes to withdraw from this agreement the pair again visit the town hall and additional documents are formally signed, witnessed and sealed. The authorities then determine the question of compensation for injured feelings, etc.

Ready For the Storm.

"I intend," the poet wrote, "to continue to storm the citadel of your affections."

"Storm away," she wrote back, "but I've just succeeded in getting in out of the wet by becoming engaged to a dear old man who has $9,000,000."—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

The Smaller One.

Many stories are told of Tom Reed's sudden flashes of wit—as, for instance, when Miss Reed struck the earth instead of the golf ball and he said, "Hit the other ball, Kitty."—Portland (Me.) Express.

An Instance.

"We don't realize how much a thing's worth till we've lost it."
"That's right. For instance, my life is insured for $10,000."—Exchange.

BRIGHT'S DISEASE

Report—Case of Mr. B. Grimes, Clear Lake, Wis.—a well developed case, albumen nearly twenty-five per cent.—loss in weight—incapacitated, could hardly get around. Treatment changed and put on Renal Comp. Feb. 12, 1900—between six and seven weeks before improvement was noted. Case began to respond about the seventh week—improvement thereafter steady. On Aug. 15, 1900, Dr. Goodwin reported the last trace of albumen had disappeared. September 15, '00, still no albumen and patient feeling so well that the above report was sent in voluntarily.

The agent employed in the above case was Fulton's Renal Compound. Where it is administered before the heart has broken down and there is still recuperative power, Chronic Bright's Disease, even in its most stubborn and supposed incurable forms, commonly yields, and physicians are more and more discarding futile Digitalis, Nitro Glycerine, Basham's Mixture, etc., under which the deaths have doubled, and are saving lives with this treatment.

The new emollient treatment, Fulton's Renal Compound, can be had in Greensboro from Fariss-Klutznick Drug Co.

We desire every patient to write us who is not noting the usual improvement by the third week. Literature mailed free. Jno. J. Fulton Co., 645 Battery St., San Francisco, Cal. We invite correspondence with physicians who have obstinate cases.

JOHN A. DIX THE MAN.

Personal Points About The New Chief Executive of the Empire State. Holland, in the Philadelphia Ledger.

John A. Dix, who is to be inaugurated as Governor of New York today, had as late as midsummer of this year no ambition for office except that of chief of the Forestry Commission of New York State. For two or three years Mr. Dix had yearned for some official relation which carried authority over the State forests. But by one of the accidents of politics he was in September suddenly placed in nomination for Governor by the Democracy. The friends who have had for years intimate association with him suspect that the most gratifying sense that he has as he contemplates his executive authority, is that due to the realization of the fact that if he is not to be the forestry commissioner he is nevertheless to be an authority over the commissioner and the commission.

The new Governor of New York is a unique as well as a charming personality. The Democracy of the State, and, in fact, the whole people are undoubtedly to realize the benefit consequent upon the happy accident of the Rochester convention, and Governor Dix is sure speedily to be a figure of national interest. There are already new and certain vague political possibilities which may vastly enlarge his public career. The Governor of New York is a man of unusual literary and scholastic education. He has been highly fortunate in having as his fellow student in the classics and the languages a wife who is as profound and appreciative a scholar as any woman in New York State. In their relation of fellow students Mr. and Mrs. Dix have traveled much, have spent days and weeks in the wilds and months at a time in the most cultivated centres of Europe.

Foley's Kidney Remedy—An Appreciation
L. McConnell, Catherine St., Elmira, N. Y., writes: "I wish to express my appreciation of the great good I derived from Foley's Kidney Remedy, which I used for a bad case of kidney trouble. Five bottles did the work most effectively and proved to me beyond doubt it is the most reliable kidney medicine I have ever taken." Howard Gardner.

DIES FROM HUNGER.

Famished Man Passes Away While Meal is Being Prepared. Philadelphia Inquirer.

After declaring he had not tasted food for days and had appealed for nourishment and lodging, an unidentified man was suddenly seized with a fainting spell and dropped dead in the Seventh and Carpenter Streets Station last night while a substantial meal was being prepared for him at a nearby restaurant.

The man had told the sergeant in charge a story of extreme need. Magistrate Coward, who was in the station-house at the time, was affected by the appearance and appeals of the unfortunate, who looked cold and whose clothing was dripping with rain, and a messenger was dispatched for food.

Before he returned with the nourishment the man sank to the floor. A physician was sent for, but he pronounced the man dead, saying the cause was heart disease induced by starvation and exposure.

Solves a Deep Mystery.

"I want to thank you from the bottom of my heart," wrote C. B. Rader, of Lewisburg, W. Va., "for the wonderful double benefit I got from Electric Bitters, in curing me of both a severe case of stomach trouble and of rheumatism, from which I had been an almost helpless sufferer for ten years. It suited my case as though made just for me." For dyspepsia, indigestion, jaundice and to rid the system of kidney poisons that cause rheumatism, Electric Bitters has no equal. Try them. Every bottle is guaranteed to satisfy. Only 50c. at Fariss-Klutz Drug Co.

A RELIABLE COUGH MEDICINE

Is a valuable friend. Foley's Honey and Tar fulfils this condition exactly. Mrs. Charles Kline, N. 8th St., Easton, Pa., states: "Several members of my family have been cured of bad coughs and colds by the use of Foley's Honey and Tar and I am never without a bottle in the house. It soothes and relieves the irritation in the throat and loosens up the cold. I have always found it a reliable cough cure." Howard Gardner.

"I can truthfully say I have never caused my wife a moment's uneasiness or annoyance," remarked the casual acquaintance. "What a liar you must be," said the married man. "Not at all," replied the casual acquaintance. "I've never had a wife."

The Origin of Royster Fertilizers.

Mr. Royster believed that success awaited the Manufacturer of Fertilizers who would place quality above other considerations. This was Mr. Royster's idea Twenty-seven years ago and this is his idea to-day; the result has been that it requires Eight Factories to supply the demand for Royster Fertilizers.

CONE COMPANY WIN THE SERIES

In Bowling Contest Last Night They Won From Electricians by Majority of 36 Pins, Taking Two Games Out of Three—Electricians Have Majority of Pins, However.

The game at the Gem Bowling alley last evening was a most interesting and spirited one, when the Public Service team went up against the boys of the Cone Export & Commission Co. The deck was filled with spectators; among those present were many ladies, and the noise was like unto that of a band of rooters for a college football crew. The Cone Company won by a margin of 36 pins.

The game last night was the last of a series of three games played by the two teams. In the first game of the series the Public Service boys closed the game with 105 pins to their credit; in the second, the Cone team won with a surplus of 18 of the billets. Last night the Public Service crew lost 36 stars, leaving them a balance of 51 pins against the Cone team. The Public Service rollers did great work in the first game, but seem to have rested their oars in the two contests following, thus losing the honors finally to their opponents. The total number of pins rolled by the Public Service Company was 5992 against 5941 by the Cone Company. However, the totals did not count, it being the best two out of three games.

The score for last night's contest follows:

Cone Co.	1st.	2d.	3d.	Total
Clapp	155	134	125	414
Wooters	111	180	165	456
